EXPLANATION OF EXHIBIT 1 TO ALASKA RAILROAD TRANSFER REPORT

Introduction.

Exhibit 1 is a compilation of land status information sheets that describes the real property within the definition of "rail properties of the Alaska Railroad" contained in Section 603(10) of ARTA. Each numbered series of sheets contains a description of the Alaska Railroad's real property in a particular township, beginning with reference No. 1 at Seward and then following the main line and branch line rights-of-way northward over 520 miles to and through the Fairbanks area. The compilation concludes with several township profiles for lands that are separated from connecting right-of-way, such as the Valdez properties. Railroad properties are identified within 121 separate townships.

Exhibit 1 describes the Alaska Railroad's real properties "to the extent possible" and "by the best available descriptions," as required by Section 605(a) of ARTA. These realistic standards indicate Congressional appreciation for the considerable difficulties attendant to adequate description of the Alaska Railroad's lands. In many instances, these lands have not been surveyed, thereby making precise description impossible. Moreover, the documentation employed by a variety of agencies over the course of 69 years to set aside Federal land for the railroad often has not been precise with respect to exact boundaries. These basic descriptive problems, presented today in the railroad transfer process, are the products of two enduring historical conditions: Alaska's status as the last unsettled frontier of the United States; and the Alaska Railroad's status as an executive agency empowered to utilize Federal lands granted by Congress to the President under the 1914 Alaska Railroad Act, as well as lands acquired from two private railroads.

The level or nature of title the State will receive with an interim conveyance or patent of rail properties is not defined by this exhibit. Section 605(a) does not require that the Transfer Report contain an opinion as to the interest to be received with such conveyances, and none is provided except where a profile sheet specifically indicates that the parties have agreed to convey and receive an identified interest. Generally, unless otherwise specified, the State will receive with an interim conveyance or patent all title of the United States in the real property conveyed, but not less than an exclusive use easement in right-of-way lands.

A number of profile sheets also indicate points of difference between several Federal agencies and the State concerning whether particular described parcels and right-of-way segments are within the definition of rail properties of the Alaska Railroad. In cases of disagreement, the inclusion of a parcel or right-of-way section in Exhibit 1 does not necessarily represent a determination that the land is rail property. Lands in dispute are included with appropriate notations so that readers of this Report will have complete information about the views of both parties concerning the railroad's real properties.

Limitations on Descriptions in Exhibit 1.

There are significant descriptive limitations in the information contained in Exhibit 1. These limitations are most significant with respect to the method employed to describe right-of-way.

Right-of-way lands are identified only by reference to the sections within a specific township through which the right-of-way passes and the approximate total mileage within each township. Such descriptions are much less specific than survey or metes-and-bounds descriptions because they give no indication of the precise location or boundaries of the tract of land described. The township-and-section descriptions of right-of-way were necessarily employed because the Alaska Railroad's right-of-way has only been roughly superimposed (without precise description) on the master title plats maintained by the BLM. To compile the status sheets in Exhibit 1, a number of sources were used to fix the location of the right-of-way within sections and townships as precisely as possible. These include the Alaska Railroad's "as built" drawings, USGS maps, survey plats, and NASA aerial photographs. Despite the skilled efforts of the technical staffs who prepared Exhibit 1, the limitations in the data available to them inevitably result in some uncertainty as to the exact location of certain railroad lands. These uncertainties will be resolved through the survey process mandated by ARTA.

As distinguished from the right-of-way lands, the railroad's reserves (consisting of parcels of land withdrawn for, permitted to, or otherwise set aside for the railroad by various means) are often described in Exhibit 1 by a reference to an executive or public land order that contains at least a metes-and-bounds description. In addition, in some cases, whole or partial surveys of the reserve have been made and these are noted with the reference "USS" or "U.S. Survey" followed by a survey number.

Most microwave facility sites are more generally described on the status sheets than are other parcels. This lack of specificity results from an absence of real property descriptions for most of the parcels, many of which are held under cooperative agreement with other Federal and non-Federal agencies. The microwave sites are described at the end of Exhibit 1 on Attachment A.

The mining claims that may affect rail properties are listed on Attachment B at the end of Exhibit 1. These claims were identified as being within or in close proximity to the right-of-way.

Real Property Interests Not Specifically Described in the Report But Deemed Included.

There are several categories of interests in land that are not susceptible to description because of the absence of suitable record documentation, or other limitations in the description process. Consequently, these interests are not expressly described in Exhibit 1, although the parties agree that they are to be transferred.

The Alaska Railroad may have not-of-record access rights over lands adjacent to rail lands in some areas. These rights may have arisen under doctrines of implied easement or easement-by-necessity, or by prescription. Similarly, some Federal land may have been reserved to the railroad by implication. While it is not possible to describe the location of such interests, if any exist, Exhibit 1 is deemed to include them as if they were expressly described.

In some areas existing rail siding may not have been separately described. Some of this siding lies outside railroad reserves and beyond the main line right-of-way. The parties intend that Exhibit 1 be construed to include all such sidings as right-of-way to be transferred to the State. Such sidings do not include industrial spurs within military reservations. With respect to industrial spurs on private property, the parties have concluded that any Alaska Railroad interest in such spurs is most likely in the nature of contract rights or personality. However, if the railroad does have a real property interest (e.g., leasehold or fee) in one or more of these non-military spurs, Exhibit 1 is intended to include that interest.

In the event that any property leased by the Alaska Railroad to another party, whether private or public, is not expressly described in Exhibit 1, it is deemed included. Considerable attention has been given to identifying all leased properties, but it is possible that some land in this category has escaped identification and will have to be added after the Transfer Report is filed.

Although telephone and telegraph lines are described on some status sheets, for the most part Exhibit 1 does not describe these lines. The parties to the Transfer Report intend that a right-of-way for such lines extending 25 feet on either side of the centerline be deemed included in Exhibit 1 for all such lines and that such right-of-way be transferred as required by ARTA.

Identification of Conveyance Categories Under ARTA.

In addition to generally describing the real property of the Alaska Railroad, Exhibit 1 also permits separate identification of the property that, subject to certain post-Transfer Report changes in status, will be conveyed to the State on the date of transfer by interim conveyance (or patent, if surveyed), license and exclusive-use easement deed. Section 605 of ARTA requires that the Report make such an identification of conveyance categories.

Properties falling within each conveyance category (interim conveyance, patent, license, exclusive-use easement) can be identified on a township-by-township basis by referring to the respective real property appendices (B through E) to the Transfer Report in combination with this exhibit. Each appendix describes real property by general reference to lands of a particular status as described in Exhibit 1; Exhibit 1, in turn, displays for each township a series of status designations, each of which falls within at least one of the conveyance categories established by the Act. These can be identified as follows:

I. Interim Conveyance.

Appendix B, providing for interim conveyance of unsurveyed real properties that are not subject to unresolved claims of valid existing rights by non-Federal parties, refers to lands in the following categories displayed on status sheets in Exhibit 1.

A. Right of Way.

1. Public Domain.
2. Chugach National Forest.
3. Military Withdrawal.
4. Other Withdrawal.
5. ANCSA Patent.
6. Interim Conveyance.
7. State Patent.

8. State Tentative Approval.

9. Other Patents.

B. Parcels.

1. Ancillary Interests of ARR.

2. Parcels.

II. Lands to Be Conveyed Upon Transfer by Patent.

Appendix C, providing for patents to be issued to the State on the date of transfer conveying surveyed real properties that were not subject on the date of enactment to unresolved claims of valid existing rights, refers to the same categories of lands displayed on the status sheets noted above with reference to the interim conveyance. The only difference between these two statutory categories (patent and interim conveyance) is that, in the case of lands to be patented, the lands are already surveyed. These lands are, for the most part, parcels identified on the status sheets by United States Survey number.

III. Licensed Lands.

Appendix D describes the real property subject to the exclusive license to be issued to the State on the date of transfer. The Alaska Railroad lands covered by the license will be only those which were subject to unresolved claims of valid existing rights on record in the Department of the Interior on the day before enactment of ARTA and continue to be subject to such claims at the time of transfer. The following categories on the Exhibit 1 status sheets refer to lands which will be licensed:

A. Right-of-Way.

1. Regional Native selection.
2. Village Native selection.
3. Native Group selection.
4. State selection.
5. Native allotment applications.
6. Mining claims.
7. Mineral estate selection (with respect to sub-surface estate).
8. "Identified interests (linear)" that meet the statutory definition of claim of valid existing right.

B. Parcels. Any parcel subject to an "identified interest" such as those listed above that meets the statutory definition of claim of valid existing right (e.g., Village or Regional Native selection).

In some cases, several of the status categories on a township profile encompass the same piece of railroad land. For instance, a tract of land might be located within the Chugach National Forest and also be subject to a Regional Native selection. If any one of the applicable designations is in the license category, then the land will be included in the license upon transfer. Using the foregoing example, the tract of land would be in the license category because it is subject to a Native claim, even though rail lands in the Chugach National Forest without third-party claims are generally in the interim conveyance or patent category.

IV. Exclusive Use Easement In Denali National Park and Preserve.

Appendix E concerns the right-of-way lands in Denali National Park and Preserve to be conveyed to the State by deed of exclusive-use easement, including track and telegraph and telephone line rights-of-way. These lands are described in general fashion in Exhibit 1 under the "Denali National Park" category. The BLM master title status plats used to determine Denali boundaries are not entirely reliable for description purposes, as the Park's boundaries are presently being more precisely identified under Section 103 of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1980, P.L. 96-487. All parties to the transfer are aware that this process is underway, and that the precise boundary location will have to be reevaluated upon its conclusion.

Explanation of Land Status Categories.

The following land status categories appear on the township profiles contained in Exhibit 1. These status categories are not intended to indicate the level of title now held by the Alaska Railroad and the United States in rail lands within the various categories. Rather, they identify Federal actions and third-party claims that physically embrace the described railroad lands and, in some cases, may affect the interest available for transfer to the State.<sup>1</sup> A short explanation of each category is given below.

Public Domain a Federal lands on which there were no claims of record on January 13, 1983, and which have not been formally withdrawn insofar as BLM's master title plats indicate. (This designation does not imply that Alaska Railroad lands within the category are or have been available for entry or disposal or are not segregated from the public lands.)

Chugach National Forest - Lands within the boundary of the Chugach National Forest, which is administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

Military Withdrawal - Lands within the boundary of a withdrawal for the Department of Defense.

Other Withdrawal - Lands within the boundary of a withdrawal for Federal agencies other than the Forest Service, the Park Service, and the Department of Defense.

ANCSA (Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act)

Patent - Lands described in patents to Native Corporations

Interim Conveyance - Lands described in interim conveyances to Native Corporations and awaiting survey and confirmatory patent.

A status category entitled "settlement Claims" appears on the profile sheets, but should be disregarded. This category was originally designed to encompass private entries pending under non-Native public land laws, such as the homestead and trade and manufacturing statutes. No such "settlement" claims to rail properties have been identified and therefore the category is inapplicable in the transfer process. The many homestead and similar settlement claims that have been approved and patented to private parties are identified under the "other patents" category, as discussed below.

Regional Native Selection - Lands selected by Regional Corporations and awaiting adjudication.

Village Native Selection - Lands selected by Village Corporations and awaiting adjudication.

Native Group Selection - Lands selected by Native Groups and awaiting adjudication.

State Patent - Lands described in patents to the State of Alaska.

State Tentative Approval - Lands described in tentative approvals of selections by the State of Alaska and now awaiting survey and patent.

State Selection - Lands selected by the State of Alaska and awaiting adjudication.

Other Patents - Lands described in patents (or other conveyance documents) issued to private parties.

Denali National Park - Lands within the boundary of the Denali Park and Preserve, which is administered by the National Park Service.

Native Allotment Applications - Lands selected by an Alaska Native pursuant to the Native Allotment Act and awaiting adjudication.

Mining Claims - Lands on which mining claims have been located and notice has been filed with the Bureau of Land Management. Mining claims are not displayed on the individual township profiles, but are shown on Attachment B to Exhibit 1.

Due to the complexity caused by overlapping land status, several of the above categories are found in combination in the summary.

Other terms used in the worksheets are defined below:

Identified Interests - Any possible interest which crosses or overlaps the railroad linear right-of-way or a parcel. (The R/W notation under identified interests will always be noted in conjunction with a serial number.)

Serial Number - Identifies a specific BLM case file. Serial numbers consist of an alpha prefix (A, AA, F, FF) and a series of numbers.

Ancillary Interest of ARR - Supporting land interests held by or for the Alaska Railroad in the form of contracts, memoranda of understanding, rights-of-way, or existing uses. (The use of the term "ancillary" does not imply the receipt of a diminished title upon transfer.)

Reserved Interests - any interest the United States has retained when lands are conveyed.

D/C - the standard reservation from the Act of August 30, 1890 to construct ditches and canals.

R/W - the standard reservation from the Act of March 12, 1914 to construct railroads, telephone and telegraph lines and ditches and canals.

OG - reservation of oil and gas.

All Min - reservation of all minerals.

ME Conveyed - conveyance of any minerals reserved in a previously issued patent.

Brackets [ ] - Statements appearing in brackets "[ ]" indicate an agreement between the Department of Transportation and the State of Alaska concerning the type of interest to be transferred or other qualification, including notation of difference of opinion concerning inclusion of the identified property in Exhibit 1.

REMARKS

Various railroad withdrawals within this township have been affected by three categories of Military withdrawals 1) Revokes RR withdrawals with a reverter back to RR when no longer needed for Military purposes 2) Modifies RR withdrawal to the extent necessary to allow military withdrawal 3) withdrawals for military purposes and does not revoke or modify the RR withdrawals. These areas have not been identified as parcels, the railroad appears to claim a reversionary interest in these lands when no longer needed by the military.

"[*The right-of-way east of Sutton is included in this Exhibit on a conditional basis only, and this inclusion does not signify a final decision concerning its status as rail properties of the Alaska Railroad. The tracks on this segment of right-of-way have been removed. The State believes these right-of-way lands are nevertheless rail properties of the Alaska Railroad because, in the State's opinion, the lands were reserved for the railroad when President Wilson located the railroad line in 1914, and because the Alaska Railroad has never relinquished its claim to this property and has retained it for possible future relocation of track to serve coal-rich areas in the vicinity of the right-of-way. The BLM is of the opinion that the Alaska Railroad's interest in this right-of-way was relinquished or expired when it removed the tracks. The parties anticipate that these complex legal and factual uncertainties concerning status will be resolved before transfer of the Alaska Railroad to the State.]"

"[*The right-of-way east of Sutton is included in this Exhibit on a conditional basis only, and this inclusion does not signify a final decision concerning its status as rail properties of the Alaska Railroad. The tracks on this segment of right-of-way have been removed. The State believes these right-of-way lands are nevertheless rail properties of the Alaska Railroad because, in the State's opinion, the lands were reserved for the railroad when President Wilson located the railroad line in 1914, and because the Alaska Railroad has never relinquished its claim to this property and has retained it for possible future relocation of track to serve coal-rich areas in the vicinity of the right-of-way. The BLM is of the opinion that the Alaska Railroad's interest in this right-of-way was relinquished or expired when it removed the tracks. The parties anticipate that these complex legal and factual uncertainties concerning status will be resolved before transfer of the Alaska Railroad to the State.]"

Attachment A TO Exhibit 1

Alaska Railroad
Communications Sites

The following is a description of the Alaska Railroad's 24 microwave communication sites. Legal descriptions are available and included for two of the sites.

In the four cases where the site is on land owned by the United States and managed by an agency other than the Alaska Railroad, the State has agreed to accept in lieu of fee title an irrevocable permit for the continued use of the site. These permits will be irrevocable, transferable, include rights of ingress and egress, and will allow the State the latitude necessary to operate, maintain, replace and upgrade communications equipment on each site. Where the site is on an existing railroad reserve, title to the site will pass to the State with the reserve. Permits and leases granted to the Alaska Railroad by non-Federal parties will also be transferred with the railroad.

1. Seward - Located on a railroad reserve. No information on exact location.
